

Applications are invited for the position of

Editor

The current Joint Editors, Sarah E. Abrams and Judith C. Hays, have given many years of excellent service to the Journal but have decided to step down at the end of 2013. We are now seeking individual applications for the position of Editor with this international nursing journal published by Wiley-Blackwell, part of John Wiley & Sons. The successful candidate will take over this prestigious position from January 1st 2014.

Public Health Nursing (PHN) aims to provide worldwide access to timely research and practice features of use to public health nurses, administrators, and educators in the field of public health nursing. Its scope is the range of population-based concerns and interventions in which nurses are involved. The journal emphasizes scholarship on vulnerable populations. Articles include research studies, program evaluations, practice concepts, and educational features published with the goal of replication and development, and theory, education, methods, policy, and ethical and legal papers that stimulate discussion and public debate. Detailed information about the journal can be found at www.wileyonlinelibrary.com/journal/phn.

The successful candidate for the position of Editor will be recognized as a leader in the nursing profession, will have an impressive track record of publications and conference presentations arising from research and scholarship, and will demonstrate commitment to the effective dissemination of new knowledge for nursing.

The ideal candidate will possess the following skills and knowledge:

- Sound scientific judgment
- Broad knowledge of public health nursing on an international level
- Awareness of trends within knowledge dissemination
- Awareness of international ethics and standards for journal publishing
- Excellent written and verbal communication, and computer literacy
- Ability to work to tight deadlines
- Previous editorial board experience

The four main functions within this role are: manuscript management, strategic development, quality control, and journal promotion. The post involves working closely with the Publisher and the Editorial Board, and an in-house Managing Editor. Applicants should note that this position requires a weekly commitment of time. The Editor can be based in any international location.

Applications should include your curriculum vitae and a short assessment of the strengths and weaknesses of PHN, including details of the skills you will bring to this position, an outline of your vision for this Journal, and how you would like to see it develop in the future.

A description of the role and responsibilities is available upon request.

Please send your application, in confidence, to:

Rosie Hutchinson, Wiley-Blackwell, 9600 Garsington Road, Oxford OX4 2DQ, UK, or email to rosie.hutchinson@wiley.com

Applications to arrive no later than March 31st 2013
